For nearly two years, the Visioning Team, a group including members of the congregation and Dr. R. Glen Miles, has been working to create a collaborative process that allows all members of the congregation to share their voices in the vision for the church's future. This process is called Sacred Conversations. Sacred Conversations are small groups of individuals who come together, led by a trained facilitator, to discuss who God calls us to be as a church, and what it means to be church.

Paying Attention to God

by Dr. R. Glen Miles

Several years ago I met with a spiritual director. A spiritual director is a person who looks carefully into your soul. During my first visit, he asked about my life. I spent a great deal of time talking about my ministry and all of the things I was involved in at the church. I went on and on about the need for more time and my desire to get more accomplished. My description of my life could have been titled “Hurry Up!”

After 15 minutes or so, he stopped me and said, “That is enough.” I thought I was dazzling. I was sure that I would get an “A” for effort and an “A” for achievement (the fact that I was looking for a grade tells you what was really going on in my life).

He said, “You are suffering from the problem of too much. Your spirit is overwhelmed. There is no room in your soul for God.”

I tried to argue but he stopped me. “No more. You talk too much. You must learn to be quiet, to make room for God in your life.”

You could say I suffered from what John Ortberg calls “hurry sickness.”

Hurry sickness is the great illusion that somehow hurrying through life will help us find more time. Ortberg says that hurry is “the great enemy of the spiritual life in our day. Hurry can destroy our souls. Hurry can keep us from living well.” Carl Jung said something similar. He wrote, “Hurry is not of the devil. Hurry is the devil.”

I believe that we know this in the depths of our souls. We know that we want to slow down and enjoy life more. We know that we want to live an uncluttered life, one that is slow enough to enjoy.

Slow down. Breathe deeply. Breathe in the spirit of God and be saved from the ruthlessness of hurry so that we might live the uncluttered and holy life that God invites us toward.

Grace and peace to you,

Coming in February

This year during Lent, we invite you to join us on a spiritual journey by choosing a path of study or reflection which will help you better connect with the Spirit, your church, and the significance of the season. In recognition of the sacred nature of Lent, the church will focus all of its energy on worship, study and fellowship, forgoing all business-related meetings. The Lenten spiritual offerings include Sacred Conversations (see page 1).

Bible Workbench

If traditional Bible Study is not for you, consider Bible Workbench. This creative and interactive approach brings a refreshing look at how real life and ancient scriptures intersect in surprising ways. Designed to enhance the spiritual journey through Lent, participants will reflect on the scripture that Dr. Miles will preach about that week during worship. A workbook provides thought-provoking questions, background information and excerpts from current literature that echo the themes. Workbook cost is $25 but library copies are available. Choose a group that fits your schedule. Men's Group – Wednesday 7:30-9:00 a.m., Jeff Zimmerman; Thursday Morning Group – 9:30-11:00 a.m., Carla Aday; Sunday Morning Group – 8:45 -9:50 a.m., Anna Tolar; Tuesday Night Group – 7:00-8:30 p.m.; Sunday Night Group – 5:00-6:30 p.m.; Chancel Choir Group, Lynn Cockle; Adult Sunday School Classes – Several of the adult Sunday School classes will participate during their Sunday morning class time.

Invitation to the New Testament

If you are interested in learning more about the Bible, this class is a great place to start. Based on the best of modern scholarship, this class offers eager learners a chance to ponder how the life of Jesus shapes and guides the personal journey of faith. This class is part of the Disciple Bible Study series. Each student will have a workbook to guide in weekly class preparation and each class will offer group discussion. Class facilitators are Clayton Hasser and Lauren Weinhold, both Disciple Bible Study veterans. Books cost $10. Tuesday evenings, Feb. 23-Apr. 13, 7:00-8:30 p.m.

Sign up by calling the church office 816-333-4917 or email marymargareth@cccckc.org.

Stained Glass Treasure

by Marilyn Wimer, Director of Administrative Services

If you were asked to name the treasures that belong to our church, my guess is most of you would include the stained glass windows on your list. Their colors, designs and content surely place them among the most beautiful features of our building. Here are a few interesting details about the windows:

- They were designed in three different studios, including the Jacobi Company from St. Louis, the Willet Studios in Philadelphia and by Dr. Charles J. Connick from Boston.

- All the windows are made from colored glass with painted details that were applied and fired before the pieces were placed together and leaded into their intricate designs.

- The lower windows contain references to the Old Testament; the larger upper windows to the New Testament.

The St. Cecelia window in the balcony is the only original window in the sanctuary; all the others were redesigned in the 1940s. When the sanctuary was constructed in 1924, the large windows on the north and south sides matched the ones found in the narthex. The colors were muted earth-tones pieced in an irregular pattern. When the congregation decided to redesign the windows, Dr. Connick, who was “considered the world’s greatest artisan on stained windows,” according to the New York Times, was commissioned. He was asked to incorporate scenes from Jesus’ life, parables, scripture passages and Christian symbols throughout his designs.

I’ve often wondered about the lengthy debate that must have taken place as Dr. Connick’s design ideas were considered. Knowing how much conversation is involved with issues far less significant, such as deciding event menus or the color to paint the walls, one can only imagine! “We must include the Good Samaritan, the Sermon on the Mount and the Nativity.” “We can’t leave out Moses or Peter or Ruth.” (All of those are portrayed in the windows, by the way.)

Ultimately, nearly 60 different Biblical stories and people were included. More than 60 years later, these wonderful works of art continue to inspire us, enriching every worship service and event held in the sanctuary.

Screening of Food, Inc.

Feb. 5 at 6:00 p.m.

Youth Ministries and the Green Team are cosponsoring a screening of the movie Food, Inc. on Fri., Feb. 5, at 6:00 p.m. in the Youth Center (Rm. 205).

The focus of the film is the corporate food industry that controls the sourcing, processing, production and sale of food. Following the screening, Diana Endicott of Good Natured Family Farms will give a 10-minute talk about resources in the Kansas City area (such as farmers markets, supermarkets with local food) and answer questions.

Many who have viewed Food, Inc. have been motivated to seek out local and organic sources of food. Endicott is the founder and director of Good Natured Family Farms’ alliance. She farms with her husband, Gary, on a 400-acre organic and 400-acre transitional farm in southeast Kansas. She has organized a farmer alliance and created a strong partnership with Balls Food Stores, a Kansas City supermarket chain.

Service of Prayer for Healing and Wholeness

Tues., Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

Join us for a peaceful time of song, scripture and prayer at 7:30 p.m. on Tues., Feb. 2 in Combs Chapel. This service offers an opportunity for church members and friends of our church to share prayerful concerns as well as blessings.

Yoga: Renew and Relax

Learn how to create balance in the body, developing both strength and flexibility through meditation. Certified yoga instructor and church member Susan Garner offers two classes each Monday in the Solarium (Rm. 309): a mixed level group at 9:00 a.m. and gentle yoga at 10:30 a.m. Classes are $10 each and you may pay as you go.

Your Voice in the Vision, continued from page 1

choosing a group which fits your schedule. A list of groups is included here, and you may sign up in the Parlor. The groups will meet weekly during Lent, as part of the church's spiritual journey to Easter. (In recognition of the sacred nature of the Lenten season, the church will focus all of its energy on worship, study and fellowship between Feb. 15 and April 2, forgoing all business-related meetings, giving members a break from council and committee meetings so you may instead participate in either this opportunity or other of the other Lenten spiritual offerings.)

Your Sacred Conversation group will begin meeting the week of Feb. 15 with your facilitators, who will open each week's discussion with a sacred reading of scripture. Your facilitator will then lead you through a series of evocative questions about spiritual vitality and discipleship. Each person in your group will be invited to share observations, experiences and thoughts.

Q: What happens next?

In your group's final session, your facilitator will share and confirm what has been learned through your group's discussions, and these findings will be shared with staff, the congregational board and the Visioning Team to shape the future of our church.

Q: Why should I participate?

Participating in Sacred Conversations gives you an opportunity to help shape the future of Country Club Christian Church for generations to come. But an equally important benefit of this process is an opportunity to participate in what others have found as a spiritually invigorating and personally fulfilling process.

Groups meet Feb. 15-April 2. Sign up in the Parlor on Sunday.

The Routine Leads to Hope

by Catherine Stark-Corn, Minister to Children, Youth and Families

I am in one of those periods of my life where I am grateful to have a routine of “have tos” ...getting up in the morning, helping my boys get ready and out the door to school, walking the dog, getting groceries to put dinner on the table, and much more on a daily basis. There are times when daily life can seem so out of kilter that it is only the rhythm of the routine that provides reassurance. I am not sure 2010 is off to the fresh, do-it-better, chance-to-change beginning we may crave in a new year. Between the devastating headlines unfolding about the earthquake in Haiti, the continued conflicts around the world, the financial struggles of so many, and the sunless days of winter I find my mind settling too often on the negative, on the fear, on a sense of helplessness.

When I find myself in this place I am reminded of why involvement in a community of faith is so essential for me. Just as the daily routine of “have tos” keeps me moving forward, so too the practice of gathering for worship to share our sorrows, to offer a collective lament to God, to hear words of hope and renewal provide a sense of balance, a handhold in times of chaos. The people of God offer me comfort in the collective act of being together.

I recently read a quote that sheds some light for me:
“When we let go of fear, only then can we gracefully move from what was into the miracle of what can be.”

There is much in life to be fearful of, to worry about, to try and change but often this is exactly what keeps us from being open to the grace of God, to the living presence of the Holy One. If we hang on so tightly to the despair, we are not able to reach out for the hope.

A friend loaned me a book called 29 Gifts, a story of a woman diagnosed with MS and her story of hanging on tightly to the anger, frustration and pain. The woman is given advice about giving away 29 gifts in 29 days – not material things necessarily. The emphasis is on turning her energy outward – moving into the miracle of what can be. As she focused on giving she had much less time and energy to hold on to the misery and she began to blossom.

As we all embark on our daily routines, may we find ways to let go of the burdens so the Sacred One can lead us into the hope of what can be...
