Building Community Book by Book

Nov. 8 Fun Run Kicks Off All-Church Book Event this Winter

Join us this winter in reading the newest selection in the Building Community Book by Book series, Run by Ann Patchett.

In honor of this year's book selection, Run, a Fun Run will be held on Sat., Nov. 8 at 8:30 a.m. at Loose Park. Registration is $15 per person and includes a t-shirt. Children and youth 18 years and under are free and they can purchase a t-shirt for $10. Register by calling the church office at 816-333-4917.

Building Community Book by Book is an opportunity for the congregation to read and discuss the same book selection, followed by a chance to meet the author.

Ann Patchett is the award-winning author of Bel Canto and Truth & Beauty. She has written for publications including the New York Times Magazine, The Atlantic, the Washington Post, and Vogue.

Run is the story of brothers raised by their loving but ambitious father after their mother's death. When an argument in a snowstorm inadvertently causes an accident involving a stranger and her child, all the father cares about is his ability to keep his children safe. Run shows us how worlds of privilege and poverty can coexist only blocks apart from one another, and how family can include people you've never even met. In Run, Patchett illustrates the humanity that connects disparate lives, weaving several stories into one moving narrative.

Watch for more information coming this fall about how to purchase the book and get involved in this great all-church literary event!

Bible Workbench: Sacred Tools for Holy Living 2.0 is Under Way

The all-church Bible study Bible Workbench: Sacred Tools for Holy Living 2.0 began last week but there is still time to join one of the small groups. The eight-week Bible study began with Dr. R. Glen Miles' sermon on Oct. 5 and will continue into November.

Small groups meet during Sunday school classes or during the week to discuss the scripture which is the basis for the next Sunday's sermon. The weekly small-group discussions continue through November, culminating in the final sermon in Dr. Miles' series on Nov. 16.

Each week's sermons are as follows:

Oct. 12	Spiritual Narcissism
Oct. 19	We Belong to God
Nov. 2	Rev. Carla Aday preaching

Welcome Dr. Charles Rolen

Dr. Charles (Chuck) Rolen began work Oct. 1 at Country Club Christian Church as Interim Minister for Congregational Care. He will serve a two-year term, filling the vacancy created by Dr. George Gordon's retirement. Dr. Rolen is "shadowing" George for a month before George retires at the end of October.

Chuck has had specific training in the intentional interim ministry. With the experience and training he brings, Chuck will be invaluable to the congregation as we transition from the legacy of George's ministry to a new, permanent Minister for Congregational Care in 2010.

An Open Door Policy

by Dr. R. Glen Miles

One of my pet phrases to say to visitors who express a desire to return is, “The doors will be open!” I want anyone who walks through our doors to know that they are open for everyone. When we keep the doors of the sanctuary open for all we are proclaiming to the world that in this place there is no concern over income, status or respectability. In this congregation, everyone who walks through the doors is given a place to sit.

Joan Puls writes, “The amazing truth of the kingdom is its availability. The kingdom is not for buying. It is not exclusive. It can’t be hoarded. It succumbs, not to power, not to birthright, not even to the magnitude and sparkle of one’s achievements...It requires one possession, freedom. The freedom to recognize kingdom-events and follow a kingdom-course.”

Her words remind us that the kingdom of God is for everyone. Everyone who chooses to live in the kingdom of God is welcome to live there.

Puls also writes that “true freedom, as true love, rids us of fear. In the economics of the kingdom, faith is sufficient.” The flip side of that, though, is that sometimes fear is more comfortable. Sometimes we choose fear over freedom because fear allows us to define ourselves as victims.

The world around us is shrinking. There is news of potential economic collapse. Terrorism is and perhaps will be for a very long time, an ongoing worry for us. Fear is an easy choice. Fear will say beware of the stranger, the outsider, the other. Fear will look at other religions and see danger.

This is where the church can be a beacon of hope and ray of light. By choosing to follow Christ, by listening to the voice of love, by opening our doors as wide as possible to the world, we can remind everyone who encounters us that we have left fear behind. We can become a place where hope lives and grace grows.

In a world that is desperate for good news we must find the strength, the courage and most of all, the freedom to proclaim God’s love for all.

Grace and Peace to you,

The Organ Shoes

by Ms. Laine Riley, Associate Director of Music

Since Festival Sunday when our new worship schedule began, duties have expanded for volunteers and staff alike. I am excited to be playing the organ for part of the 8:00 a.m. chapel service. I enjoy the quiet, meditative nature of the service. As I prepared to play the organ again on a weekly basis, I took out my old organ shoes. These shoes and I have been together for many years, with a somewhat sordid history.

When I was 23 years old and had just moved to Newport News, VA, I began looking for a part-time church choral directing job while working on my master's degree in choral conducting. I happened to call Hilton Presbyterian Church literally hours before their search committee was going to decide to hire one of their current candidates. They asked if I could drive by a resume, and then called to schedule my auditions with their various choirs, as well as on the organ. Yikes. What I did not volunteer to them was that my entire organ experience consisted of one year of half-hour lessons during undergrad, but frankly, I needed the job.

So, I dusted off my organ shoes and prepared... a lot. I remember that for my organ audition I played the only two difficult pieces I knew well, and the hymns that were assigned. I actually convinced them that hearing me sight-read wasn't really necessary, as I would prepare extensively for every service. They were more than kind, and took a leap of faith. I was terrified.

I remember spending several hours a day on the bench those first year couple of years. There is nothing like countless hours of practice combined with the desperate need to know to help improve your skills. There were many moments of frustration and feelings of inadequacy as I put on those shoes every day. I also began to enjoy the challenge.

One Sunday morning about 12 years ago, as the choir and I were preparing to walk into worship, the strap broke on those old shoes of mine. In hurried frustration, I ran into the office, grabbed a rubber band and strapped my shoe back on. I told the choir, "That's it, once this rubber band breaks, I'm done playing the organ!" Well, that same rubber band was still on my shoes when we moved back to Missouri. It finally broke just weeks ago, as I was putting on my shoes to practice the Saturday before Festival Sunday. I smiled as I remembered my dear friends from Virginia, and their patience with me. After all these years, I have come to love playing the organ. This time I calmly walked to the office, and grabbed another rubber band. Although this one might hold out just as long, I think maybe it's time for a new pair of shoes.

Watch for Green Changes Around the Church

With an eye to being the best stewards of God's creation that we can be, Country Club Christian Church now has a Green Team examining what we as a church might do better in terms of minimizing our impact on the environment. The team recently had consulting firm BlueStem Solutions determine the size of the church's carbon footprint and deliver recommendations about how the size of that footprint can be reduced.

In the months to come, keep an eye out for updates from the Green Team in the Christian, on the web site, and around the building. The team's goal is to not only make the church itself greener, but for Country Club Christian Church to become a sustainable model for the Kansas City area. We also hope to educate you, the congregation, on ways you can live greener at home. Some of these will be easy, low-cost methods and some will be a bit more difficult, but as true custodians of God's earth we feel that these are important steps to take as a church body.

If you haven't yet noticed, the light bulbs in the Sanctuary chandeliers are all now CFLs (compact fluorescent lamps). Also keep an eye out for some new high-efficiency toilets and faucet aerators in the main bathrooms. The differences might be subtle, but they will have a great impact in the long run. Anywhere you see the new Green logo, change is afoot. The Green Team is excited about moving forward on creating a more sustainable church and hope you will be, too. For more information or to get involved, contact Mindee Forman at mindeeforman@sbcglobal.net.

To Serve and to Grow

by Rev. David Diebold, Minister of Music

Sometimes the moments of serendipity in our lives are subtle. Other times I think they crash into our consciousness. Over the last several days, my experience has been the latter. Recently Glen preached a fine sermon on Matthew 25: 31-46. The next day, Kelly used a passage from Mother Theresa to center the staff before a meeting.

On Saturday, the daily quote in my day planner was from Marianne Williamson: “Nothing liberates . . . like the desire to help, the desire to serve.”

This is a message I’ve heard all of my life: people of faith do for others. Service takes many forms, from giving a homeless person a few dollars on the street to offering volunteer time in a service organization. The list of possibilities is as varied as the list is long. I am aware many of us have a regular routine of helping others and each of us has our own motivations for doing so. Personally, I have noticed that our lives are changed when we are of service to others, as are the lives of those we help. One of my involvements in recent years has been with the MS Society.

Almost 10 years ago, while purchasing a new bicycle, I saw a poster for what was then the MS 150, a two-day event that involved bicycling 150 miles through the Missouri countryside. I realized that I had found an opportunity to serve others. I knew I could train for such a distance and it would not encroach on my work schedule. I was attracted to the MS ride because there are two individuals in my choir that have Multiple Sclerosis. I figured I would ride in their honor and raise money for MS. It seemed like a perfect fit.

That first year, as people sent me contributions for the ride, a number included handwritten notes explaining that they also had a family member with MS. That first year I learned of 10 people with MS that were in some way attached to our congregation. Every year I have added new names to my list and now ride for about 26 individuals. The ride has now grown to almost 200 miles of riding in two days. This year was my ninth consecutive ride and it continues to change my life.

I realize that not everyone can or wants to ride, walk or run. There are other ways we can help people. My hope is that we take the message of Matthew 25 seriously enough that we will risk our comfort level and do something, anything at all, that will be of service to others.

Peace...

Children and Families

Volunteers Reap the Rewards

Each Sunday morning a group of adults has an experience like no other! These volunteers help as a teacher, shepherd, storyteller or greeter in the Children’s Sunday School ministry. You too can enjoy getting to know some of the younger members of our faith family. There are a range of ways to get involved in the Children’s Ministry – if you have one Sunday morning or numerous Sunday mornings to volunteer we can use your time and talents. We know you will benefit from opportunities to interact with the children of our church. Contact Rev. Catherine Stark-Corn for detailed information about working in the Children’s Ministry, catherinesc@cccckc.org.

Fountains of Faith

The Covenant: Abraham

First through fifth graders will explore the theme of covenant through the stories of Abraham’s faithfulness to God. This covenant established so long ago is a covenant that binds us, calls us, demands of us that we worship God and acknowledge the grace and salvation offered to us through God’s everlasting love. The Abraham rotation will be taught through Oct. 19. Through cooking, storytelling, art and more, the children will learn the Biblical stories of Abraham.

Moms Group – Growing in Faith

Many women feel the daily pulls on them – work, family and household. We invite you to take time for yourself – to nurture your spirit through faith-focused discussions. We meet the second and fourth Tuesdays (Oct. 14 and 28) in the morning from 10:00 to 11:15 a.m. Our current discussion is based on the series Living the Questions. Join us for fun and fellowship. Childcare available. RSVP to Chris at christ@cccckc.org
