Hartman Elementary Partnership Flourishing

Courtney and Corrie are twins in Ms. Deana Fustini's second grade class. They have matching chocolate brown eyes and infectious smiles. Avion is a good student, one of Ms. Fustini's best helpers. Julian is the class clown, which occasionally gets him into trouble, but he is eager to help his friend Markevean with a reading assignment, acting out the words Markevean doesn't know. Xzaveayr's favorite subject is reading, and, according to Ms. Fustini, he is the best scientist in the class.

the church's volunteer data, that's akin to providing Hartman a full time staff person one week out of every month.

Volunteers help students who need extra instruction in reading and math and other areas. The students are bright, funny and eager to receive special attention from the church's volunteers.

The support the church's volunteers provide the school, and in particular, the teachers, is immeasurable. With full classrooms and broad curriculum to cover, teachers can't always provide specialized attention to students who might need it.

One day each week, a member of Country Club Christian Church visits Ms. Fustini's classroom as part of the church's Youth Friends partnership with Hartman Elementary School. Since August 2011, Country Club Christian Church volunteers have logged over 200 hours working with students, teachers and classrooms. According to Leann Ritter, collector

Additional volunteers are welcome for the remainder of this school year. If you are interested in becoming one of the church's Youth Friends volunteers, you must complete a brief training program.

Temptation, Sin and Holy Laughter

by Dr. R. Glen Miles

My friend Russell, a preacher, says that every one of us deals, every moment of every day, with great temptation. That temptation is hurting us; that temptation is killing the church.

The temptation he is talking about is probably not what you might think. The temptation he has in mind is the temptation to run from discomfort. Have you noticed that we are afraid of being uncomfortable?

Another preacher I know says that the church often fails to see that the common thread that runs through every congregation is this: EVERYONE IS UNCOMFORTABLE. The pews are mourning benches, he says. Everyone who walks through the doors at the back of our sanctuary is carrying something heavy. Everyone, including the one in the pulpit, is afraid of the discomfort that comes from acknowledging the weight of our failure, the heaviness of our guilt.

Psalms 51 invites us to become uncomfortable so that we might be renewed.

*Create in me a clean heart, O God
And renew a right Spirit within me.*

This old poet recognizes his sin and asks God to cleanse him from it. That's not an easy thing to face. Barbara Brown Taylor, in a sermon on repentance, says that we need to recognize and pay attention to our sin. Sin is our only hope, she writes, because the recognition that something is wrong is the first step toward setting it right again.

I've often thought about asking the congregation to write on the back of one of the offering envelopes in the pews the worst sin you have ever committed. When everyone finished, I would invite you to pass the slip to your neighbor. There would be an immediate hushed silence, then the room would be filled with uproarious laughter as we realized that everyone one of us was in the same boat.

Uncomfortable? At first, yes. But in that moment of Holy Laughter we would finally be able to embrace the joy of God's salvation.

Grace and peace to you,

I Am Happy

by Justin Zeigler, Minister to Youth

For the past few weeks I've been able to volunteer at Hartman Elementary School in Ms. Iverson's class. I've been working with some of the children that need some extra attention. Four children and I opened our reading books and we began to practice our reading skills. We went around the circle taking turns reading sentences. There was a lot of stumbling, a lot of guessing, and a lot of me encouraging them to try again. It was soon Nicole's turn. Nicole had never read a sentence in her life. She slowly examined the page and cautiously read me the sentence "I am happy." She looked up with an expression of shock and joy and said "I READ! I READ IT!" I smiled back and said "Yes you did, you're a reader!"

As a congregation we helped Nicole become a reader so that she can learn and grow. We have served people in Nicaragua so that they can live a healthier life. We play games with the children at the Salvation Army Children's Shelter so that they know that people love and care for them. We serve meals at Micah ministry so that people can sleep with a full stomach.

We cheer our kids on as they sing during the children's musical so that they know how fun it is to create and share. We laugh in the parlor after worship because life is funny sometimes. We teach and participate in classes because our lives are enriched by the wisdom of sharing with one another.

We help people marry the loves of their lives, and we help them mourn their loved ones, because we know that God is here at all times.

We do all of this and more because God is love. Because God is love, because we are who we are I for one am with my friend Nicole, "I am happy."
